Semi-automatic civilian version of the Soviet AKM

The KA-17 takes up the mythical and original lines of the Kalashnikov AK47

- Simple, reliable and robust operation
- M14x1L threaded barrel
- Fluid trigger: 1.6 Kg
- Polymer stock, handle and handguard
- Operation by direct gas borrowing
- Metal sights with adjustable rise
- Effective range 800m
- Muzzle velocity: 715 m/s
- 10 round magazine
- Made in Slovakia

Tested by us, the KA-17 presents a pleasant fluidity of its mechanics and fire selector.

A fluid relaxation without hard point with a light departure weighed at 1.6 kg.

The fit of the parts, and the ease of disassembly sets it apart from many AK47 clones.

The KAM-17 has a homogeneous and resistant surface treatment.

It is delivered with a metal magazine, and has a breech stop when the weapon is empty.

The Soviet AKM is distinguished by its simplicity of design, endurance and foolproof resistance.

It is able to withstand the most extreme weather conditions, without ever getting stuck.

It is the most produced assault rifle in the world with a long military career.
