A modern AK-based rifle for dynamic shooting or collection

Suitable for fans of modernized Soviet platforms, this semi-automatic rifle in 5.45x39 caliber combines the ergonomics of polymer with the robustness of stamped steel. Its integrated side rail allows the simple addition of a scope or a red dot, without altering the balance of the weapon. This compact and reliable model is designed for use in ranges or supervised sport shooting, in compliance with current regulations.

- Carcass: stamped steel according to AKM standards
- Furniture: Handguard and stock made of durable polymer
- Initial speed: 715 m/s for a straight trajectory
- Compatibility: Accepts standard AK74 magazines
- Manufacturing: WBP factory equipped for maintenance and repair

The 5.45x39 mm caliber: precision and low recoil

Developed by the Soviet Union in the 1970s to replace the 7.62x39mm, the 5.45x39 caliber was designed to improve accuracy, reduce recoil, and provide a smoother trajectory over long distances. It is used in the AK-74 and remains popular today for precision and dynamic shooting thanks to its advantageous ballistic characteristics. Lighter than its predecessor, it allows for better control during rapid fire and increased ammunition capacity.

- Origin: Soviet standard of 1974
- Use: sport shooting, training on AK platform
- Ballistic advantage: low recoil, good stability
- Distribution: Widespread in Eastern countries
